

SURE, SOME STREETS have a bunch of stop signs. You might even think they're there to reduce travel speed, but they're not. Here's the scoop:

CALIFORNIA ROLL

- Stop signs are installed to establish right-of-way at intersections.
- The city installs stop signs at an intersection only after carefully evaluating existing conditions to determine that installation is appropriate to improve safety.
- Stop signs reduce the number of broadside accidents.
- Stop signs are often installed to prevent vehicle, bicycle and pedestrian accidents where they've occurred in the past.

Come to a complete stop.
