

The INTERNET is a powerful tool for children to learn new things, see different places and access information. But there are bad people out there who want to get to know your child. Protect your kids from strangers:

SURF SAFE

- Check with your internet service provider and see what lock-out mechanisms are available to prevent access to specific websites.
- Don't let your child give out their real name, address or phone number.
- Let kids know that they don't have to respond to questions from strangers.
